CORONER FREES CAMPBELL GIRL AFTER INQUEST

Two-Day Hunger Strike In Warren Jail Ends Following Verdict

ALL DETAILS RELATED

Attempt At Suicide Told To Ohio Official

WARREN, Dec. 28 — (UP) — Louise Campbell, 28, heiress to a steel fortune, was exonerated today in connection with the fatal shooting of her mother, Mrs. Cordella Campbell, 55, during a Christmas party at their mansion.

A verdict of "accidental death" was given after Coroner J. C. Henshaw had conducted an inquest at which Miss Campbell, granddaughter of the founder of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., was the principal witness.

Announcement of the verdict ended a hunger strike which Miss Campbell had engaged in since being placed in the Trumbull county jail Sunday, when her mother died. Until this morning, she refused food.

Mrs. Campbell was shot, police said, when her daughter shot at lights on a Christmas tree. "I have no appetite and will be all right just being alone here," Miss Campbell had told jail matrons for two days.

"The county jail has not been unsatisfactory," she told her sister, Mrs. E. G. Ravelli, in commenting on the kindness of Mrs. Roy S. Hardman, wife of the sheriff.

Jail attendants said Miss Campbell "brightened" when she heard the coroner's verdict.

She testified at the inquest that her mother was shot accidentally. (Continued on Page Eight)

CITY'S DEFICIT FOR 1937 TO BE CLOSE TO $200

Circleville will end 1937 about $200 in the "red," Miss Lillian Young, city auditor, announced after completing a check of her books.

The city's general fund contained $3,859.43, Tuesday. All salaries for December have been paid. The deficit is brought about by the $3,500 street-lighting bill carried since 1935 and outstanding bills of $531, or total unpaid debts of $4,031. Based on Tuesday's figures the general fund minus the debts would be in the "red" $171.57. Other small bills may increase it to about $200, Miss Young believed.

SCIOTO PROJECT MONEY IS PAID BY ROSS COUNTY

Commissioners of Ross county agreed Monday to contribute their share toward preliminary financing of the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district after a conference with Edwin F. Bearce, vice president of the conservancy association, and Joseph Van Meter member of the board of directors. Ross county was one of three counties in the district which had contributed nothing for preliminary financing. The district includes 18 counties, of which Pickaway county is a part. Pickaway county contributed its share over a year ago.

The conservancy district officials explained that the project has final approval and lacks only finances to complete the survey. The Ross county share was fixed at $675.

Funds advanced by the counties will be returned when the project allotment is made. "The project is number one on the list," Mr. Bearce said. It has been approved by the Rivers and Harbors committee and Major General Schley, chief of army engineers. It is estimated between $200,000 and $300,000 would be needed for the army survey.

Congressman Arthur Lamneck, of Columbus, is to ascertain whether any money for this purpose is available in the army's survey fund. If not, a congressional appropriation will be necessary.

Mr. Bearce explained that the approach of the flood season emphasizes the importance of the project.

CLERK OF COURT WARNS AUTOISTS OF NEW STATUTE

Persons who have bills of sale in their names, that have not been filed, should present them before Saturday, A. L. Wilder, clerk of courts, warned Tuesday.

Mr. Wilder explained that after the first of the year the original owner of the car will have to obtain a certificate of title before transfer can be made. Office equipment for Glyn Hoover, Ashville, recently appointed as a clerk in the office, to take care of the certificates of title, was moved into the clerk's office Tuesday.

WARDELLS WIN PRIZE

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wardell won first prize in the home decorating contest sponsored in Williamsport.

"THE BIG APPLE" NOT OFFICIAL? WHO CARES!

The Florida Society of Teachers of Dancing have put their official disapproval on "The Big Apple," but the dancing masters who make up the society would have had a difficult time, Monday evening, proving to the 150-odd couples at the Mistletoe Charity Ball that the big "swing-black bottom-Charleston-etc." hop was not the proper thing.

Led by Richard Harman, Burn Jones, Dave Jackson et al, the local "Big Apples" went to town in a real fashion at the big ball.

The dancing decided at their convention in Coral Gables, Fla. to declare polite but official warfare on the "fad".

"The Big Apple" is not a dance at all," said Viola Belasco, president of the society. "In readapting the steps of the out-dated Charleston and Black Bottom to the current fad of swing music, it outdated itself from an official point of view."

BUFFALO LIGHTS OFF AS BLAST HALTS UTILITY

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 28 — (UP)—An explosion followed by fire in a Buffalo Niagara Electric company plant cut off electric power in this city today, plunging several hospitals into momentary darkness and forcing many industrial plants to suspend operations.

At 11:20 a. m. the power had been off two hours.

Stores and office buildings not equipped with emergency power plants were forced to close. The electric company reported that nearly all of the residential power in this city of nearly 600,000, was cut off but that partial commercial power was being maintained.

Only one of the city's five radio stations was operating. Many downtown department stores were forced to close. Others remained open through operation of their emergency plants.

Hospitals reported that prompt use of auxiliary equipment had forestalled serious circumstances. An appendicitis operation was underway in Columbus hospital when the power failed. It was completed with auxiliary power.

At Central Park clinic one operation was completed under similar circumstances. All others were postponed until electric power is restored.

MOTOR MAGNATE HIRES ATTORNEY WHO BEAT N. R. A.

DETROIT, Dec. 28 — (UP) — The Ford Motor company retained today the lawyer who pleaded successfully with the supreme court for invalidation of the N.R.A. to conduct its battle through the courts against a National Labor Relations Board decision that it had engaged in illegal anti-union activity and had discharged 29 workers because of their union membership.

The lawyer is Frederick Wood of New York who was attorney for the Schechter brothers of Brooklyn whose "sick chicken" case overthrew the N.R.A.

A spokesman for the Ford company indicated that the company would make no move to oppose the order until the labor board applies to the U. S. circuit court of appeals for an order to enforce its decision. Under the Wagner law, the board can apply for the order 10 days after it has rendered a decision.

The company will then oppose the granting of the enforcement order, the spokesman said. He declared that the company had determined to carry the case to the supreme court if necessary.

Wood will be assisted by Louis J. Colombo, Ford attorney, who directed the company's case before the labor board.

ROADS CHECKED IN RADCLIFF'S ROBBERY PROBE

Eight parked autos and a truck were investigated by Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell, Monday night, in a check of highways conducted by the department to obtain clues concerning recent thefts of livestock.

Eleven hogs and a sheep have been stolen from county farmers in the last 10 days. Highways are being checked each night for suspicious autos or trucks.

DECORATIONS SHOULD BE KEPT LIGHTED 7 TO 10

Although the night for the judging has not been revealed, it will be completed before Saturday. Out-of-town persons will act as judges.

PARRETT QUILTS PUMPKIN SHOW SECRETARY JOB

Society Directors Decline To Act On Official's Resignation

MORE REPORTS LISTED

Mayor Graham Thanks All For Assistance

Resignation of Mack Parrett, Jr., as secretary of the Circleville Pumpkin Show society was received and tabled by directors at a meeting held in the council chamber Monday night.

Since the meeting was the last for the present board of directors and the new board will select a secretary, the present members took no action on Mr. Parrett's request.

"I feel your resignation is unnecessary," Mayor W. J. Graham, president of the organization, informed Mr. Parrett. "We're just a pleasant little organization dying a natural death and I don't feel we should take any action."

Under regulations of the organization the mayor appoints the various directors, and the directors name their secretary. Mayor Graham is succeeded in office by W. B. Cady on Jan. 1.

Mr. Parrett has served as secretary of the show society since 1931. During the first six years in the office he received $125 a year. Last year he was paid a 10 percent commission on the street space sold for the show, or $358.

Growth in Department

"Tonight I have turned in my completed reports for 1937," Mr. Parrett's letter to directors stated. "In the seven years that I have served as your secretary there has been a steady growth in my department. This year's receipts, $3,580.50, for space and concessions, is the highest in the history of the show. The books show a loss in general receipts this year, but I am glad that my department is ahead, for I should hate to leave this organization if (Continued on Page Eight)

HOTEL'S GUESTS ESCAPE FLAMES IN TUPELO, MISS.

TUPELO, Miss., Dec. 28 — (UP) — A dozen persons escaped death early today by jumping from second story windows of the Southern hotel when the structure was destroyed by fire.

Damage was estimated at $60,000.

Herman Humphrey, Negro porter, risked his life when he rushed through the hotel and warned the sleeping guests of the fire. Several of those who were forced to jump were clad only in night clothes. Cause of the fire was not known.

WOMAN WHO KILLED BABY WITH PARING KNIFE FACES DEATH

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 28 — (UP) — Authorities charged today that Mrs. Sophia Arcuri thrust a paring knife down the throat of her best friend's five months old baby and gave it a sharp twist. She put the body under her friend's Christmas tree.

The motive, the authorities said, was vengeance. Her friend and her friend's husband had failed to keep the furnace going. On the basis of a confession, Mrs. Arcuri will be charged with murder today.

The baby was Christina Boloton and her parents are Louis and Mary Boloton. Mrs. Arcuri and her husband, Frank, own a two family house in Greenbrook, N. J. They are their three months old daughter lived in one side, and the Bolotons, with their daughter, lived in the other. Both were young couples, all less than 30, and they were intimates.

Authorities said that Arcuri had agreed to install a furnace if the Bolotons would keep it burning. The Bolotons left the house yesterday without fueling the furnace, a matter which had caused a quarrel the day before. After brooding all day about it, Mrs. Arcuri told authorities that she went to the Boloton's commercial greenhouse nearby and while Mrs. Boloton talked to a customer, she took her baby and ran back to the house.

In the kitchen of her own apartment, authorities said she confessed, she propped the baby up in a chair and thrust the knife down her throat.

Half an hour later, Mrs. Boloton missed her baby. She searched the greenhouse, the grounds around it, finally in desperation, returned home. There under the Christmas tree was her baby—dead.

DAVEY TO CALL ASSEMBLY FOR ANOTHER PROBE

AKRON, Dec. 28 — (UP) — The Akron Times-Press said today it had learned reliably that Governor Martin L. Davey on Jan. 3 will call a special session of the Ohio legislature to investigate both legislative and administrative departments of state government.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 28 — (UP) — The first hearing in the Ohio senate's investigation into "legal graft" in state departments will be held tonight, it was announced today.

Willard V. Archer, liquor agency operator at Belle Valley, Noble county, will be the first witness. He is the only person subpoenaed for tonight's hearing.

Former Senator James Hetzenbach, who is in charge of the investigation, did not say why Archer had been called.

Archer has the only agency in Noble county, according to records of the liquor department. There is no state liquor store in the county. Archer's first agency contract was granted on Jan. 11, 1937.

SNYDER DENIED FEDERAL PAROLE ON TAX CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 — (UP) — The federal parole board has denied a parole to Gustave W. Snyder, Columbus, O., sentenced to the Milan, Mich., prison farm on charges of federal income tax evasion, justice department officials said today.

Snyder was sentenced at Columbus April 20, 1937. His minimum term expires Nov. 28, 1938. He became eligible for parole Dec. 18.

BIG PACIFIC TANKER REPORTED GROUND

SENATE, HOUSE LEADERS MEET TO DRAFT BILL

Pope Of Idaho Suggests Payment Increases To Aid Great Number

CONFABS TO START

Fifty Millions Requested Under Proposal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 — (UP) — Senate-house conferees on the farm bill will be asked to earmark $50,000,000 of available funds to increase benefit payments to "small" farmers, Sen. James P. Pope, D. Ida., said today.

Pope revealed the schedule of payments by which sponsors of the bill hope to meet the demands for aid to "small" farmers without placing a definite ceiling on payments to large producers.

Containing that approximately 85 percent of the farmers participating in the program would receive benefit payments of less than $100 each, Pope proposed the following scale of increases on base payments:

A 40 percent increase on payments of $20 or less; between $20 and $50, a 20 percent increase; between $50 and $100, a 10 percent increase.

Boosts Cumulative

The increases would be cumulative so that a farmer receiving a base payment of $60 would receive the 40 percent increase on the first $20; a 20 percent increase on the next $30, and a 10 percent increase on the next $10, or a total payment of $75, including $15 of increase provided by the plan.

Pope contended that the new payment plan would require only a readjustment of the distribution of funds made available for the program by congress next year, rather than calling for additional expenditures.

President Roosevelt has asked congress to keep expenditures for the farm program within an available $500,000,000, unless additional revenue sources are found.

Co-Operation Needed

Pope has opposed provisions in the house and senate bills which placed a definite ceiling on the payments that large farmers might receive under the program on the contention that 10 percent of the farmers control 50 percent of the acreage. Without their co-operation, the program probably will fail, he believed.

The senate bill contains an amendment which would start scaling down the payments to producers after they receive $600 with a final cut of 95 percent on all payments in excess of $2,500.

The house bill contains a provision reducing by 25 percent payments in excess of $1,000, with a (Continued on Page Eight)

He is in the county jail.

Kidnaped—Freed

CHINESE HARASS JAP BOATS IN SHANGHAI AREA

SHANGHAI, Dec. 28 — (UP) — Daring Chinese grenadiers bombed a Japanese army launch in Soochow creek today for the second time in 24 hours.

Three men waited on the Chekiang road bridge across the creek, which runs through the center of Shanghai, and bombed the launch as it passed. Then they quickly lost themselves in the crowds along the creek side. Japanese soldiers in the launch fired vainly at them. It was reported that one Japanese soldier had been wounded.

The attacks on Japanese army launches, it was noted, started almost at the hour of the promulgation by Japanese authorities of new drastic regulations prescribing the death penalty for anyone, including Americans and other foreigners, who molested the Japanese army or navy in occupied territory.

So alarmed were Shanghai municipal police at the new development that tonight they closed all but four bridges over Soochow creek, and the traffic on the four which remained open was halted every time a Japanese boat passed.

CARAVAN AT EASTON, PA.; NEW YORKER IN HOSPITAL

EASTON, Pa., Dec. 28 — (UP) — The ox-cart caravan enroute from Ipswich, Mass., to Ohio in a recreation of the opening the Northwest territory was welcomed to Easton today by Mayor Joseph Morris and leading citizens.

West Coast Navy Chief Denies Rumor Japanese Sea Fleet Sought

AIRPLANES IN ACTION

Los Angeles Paper Says Flotilla Sighted

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Dec. 26—(UP)—Rumors of alien submarine activity off the California coast, and the dispatch of a second squadron of nine naval destroyers here from San Diego for patrol duty enlivened the navy's mysterious maneuvers in the Pacific today.

The Los Angeles Daily News said today that navy authorities were discussing reports that "an alien flotilla of submarines, probably Japanese," had been seen off the coast.

The newspaper said the information came from "a man well versed in naval secrets both in California and Washington," and that the informant said it was feasible for Japanese submarines to operate from some secluded place along the lower California coast.

Commander C. J. Wheeler, secretary to Admiral Arthur J. Heppburn, commander-in-chief of the fleet, denied the rumor.

"The navy has not taken any stock in it," Wheeler said. "The report is about a week old, first describing only one submarine. It appears to have grown into a flotilla."

Seaplanes Searching

The Los Angeles newspaper informant said the navy had sent seaplanes to scout for the submarines. He did not say what the fliers intended to do had they found them.

Navy authorities continued to describe the movement of destroyers as part of a routine security program.

Squadron two, comprising eight newly-commissioned, 1,500-ton destroyers, led by the U. S. S. Porter, a "pocket cruiser" of 1,850 tons, was ordered here from San Diego today.

Rear Admiral Walter R. Sexton, commander of the destroyer flotilla of the battle force, said squadron two would relieve squadron eleven, which came here after emergency mobilization ten days ago and began patrolling the coast while bluejackets in navy launches guarded San Diego bay and halted and boarded scores of fishing boats that they encountered.

The destroyers had been confining their patrol work to the San Diego and San Pedro areas, but yesterday they appeared off Ventura, 125 miles north of here.

Mayor Margulis being away on his trip to California, the president of Council succeeds to the place and C. B. Morrison happens to be the "lucky" individual. It is Mayor Morrison now for a few days and we are guessing a few days are plenty long. Mayor Fraunfelder, elect, has announced that he will organize his official family on January 1 and be ready for the first regular council meeting the first of the new year, January three.

Ashville Inspector Home Marion Scothorn, now a federal meat inspector at New York City, spent Christmas at home in Ashville with his parents, Scott and Mrs. Scothorn. Joseph Higley has returned to his work at Philadelphia.

Ashville Stocks Disappear

The Christmas wares stocked by our business people have disappeared and the usual everyday garb has been substituted. "Charlie McCarty" has the right of way among the small children at "Brinks" and it is more than just amusing to witness the reaction from some of them.

Ashville Visitors

John White, Erroll Decker and B. S. Custer of aMrey territory were here Monday just for a friendly visit. Mr. Custer told us how he intended to go on a sitdown strike and take some few days off occasionally. Had much praise for his good neighbors and thought he would continue to operate his farm the coming season. We promised to visit him one of these days soon when we can find a little time to spare. His "cook" still prepares plenty of good eats. We phoned in his order for The Herald and he'll be made happy by tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28—(UP)—The United Mine Workers union moved into its brand new $275,000 offices today.

At present the union is located in the tower building but last year it bought the defunct University club and has extensively remodeled the building.

President John L. Lewis will have his office in part of the old lounge where club members formerly sat in easy chairs in the days before the Latin scrolls adorning the office were stricken off in favor of a simply lettered legend bearing the name of the coal diggers union.

The new offices will include a library, lounge, dining room and kitchen. Arrangements have been made to take care of private dinners.

President John L. Lewis will have his office in part of the old lounge where club members formerly sat in easy chairs in the days before the Latin scrolls adorning the office were stricken off in favor of a simply lettered legend bearing the name of the coal diggers union.

The new offices will include a library, lounge, dining room and kitchen. Arrangements have been made to take care of private dinners.

A CHRISTMAS LETTER

FROM DR. W. C. L. CORRELL

For the last month or two and as the Christmas season drew nearer, I have been besieged with numerous inquiries as to the state of health and mind of Dr. W. C. L. Correll, the one-time able and popular pastor of the Circleville Methodist church; these inquiries growing out, naturally, of the long-time intimacy of the Correll and Johnson families.

The local Methodists for the last fifteen or twenty years, have been very fortunate in the character of them and in no single instance, have they had greater reason for being thankful, than at the moment of Dr. Correll's advent among them as their religious mentor and leader. As is generally known, he has been on the retired list for several years; and during that time has lived quietly on a splendid small southland farm between Petersburg and Richmond, Virginia.

Meantime, the doctor has been compelled to mourn the passing of his good wife and helpmate, since which event, he has lived practically alone. It may be of interest to many friends of the family to note here that Mrs. Correll, was a near relative of one of Virginia's first families; the Gordons. John B. Gordon was a native of Georgia, a university graduate, a member of the staff of General Lee, a participant at Gettysburg and after the war, was twice Governor of Georgia and later, served two terms in the United States Senate.

That friends of the family back here in Ohio and particularly those in Circleville and Pickaway county, may be directly informed as to the present status of the former minister, I am taking the liberty of publishing in our local paper such portions of a letter received a few days ago as are impersonal and which will be an answer to the queries of his many admiring and anxious friends. I quote—

At Home

Mr. J. W. Johnson and Family, Circleville, Ohio
Dear Friends:—

I was greatly pleased to receive a Christmas Greeting card from Miss Carrie. It indicated a kindly remembrance.

I have been having considerable trouble with my eyes lately. Otherwise physically, I have not much to complain of. I have been hoping since the Winter set in that you might decide to go back to Florida again; and that in case you did so decide, you would come by Petersburg (you know you promised me) and spend a few days with me. You know I live on the best water in the world and right at my door step.

You spoke of the "depression" in your last letter. I have lived a good while and I am frank to say that I have never seen the country as dead and demoralized as at this present time.

I am not farming much and hope to sell the farm one of these days. When I do sell, I shall have to look for a home elsewhere. At present, I lean toward Ohio for finding it. My two older sons live in Kansas and Michigan, respectively. The daughter still lives in Logan.

In spite of the many kind friends I have and who can not always find the time to write to

IRONTON READY TO START WORK ON FLOOD TASK

IRONTON, Dec. 28—A communication from Colonel D. O. Elliott, in charge of the United States District Engineers' office, Cincinnati, was read to City Council Monday night at its final meeting of the year, indicating that Ironton's flood defense program would be started early next Spring.

A resolution assuring the government of city co-operation and ability to supply right of ways and damage costs, was passed in keeping with a request from the district engineer.

A detailed map of proposed flood workings is to be supplied soon, on receipt of which the city will start its property and easement acquisition program.

A resolution transferring unused moneys from several funds to a special flood emergency relief fund was adopted, straightening out flood relief expenditures of recent months.

The City Manager was authorized to attend a meeting of the Senate Tax Committee in Columbus Tuesday, at which conference the Winter and 1938 relief situation throughout the state will be considered.

GOVERNMENT POSITIONS ARE OPEN FOR TESTS

The United States Civil Service commission has announced open competitive examinations as follows:

Junior tabulating machine operator, $1,440 a year; alphabetic accounting machine operator, $1,440 a year.

Inspector of railway signaling and train control, $3,800 a year, Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mathematical statistical analyst, and senior, associate, and assistant mathematical statistical analysts, $2,600 to $4,600 a year, Soil Conservation Service.

Full information may be obtained from Leslie L. Pontius, Secretary of the U. S. Civil Service Board of Examiners, at the post-office.

I try to be submissive and grateful. In a moment of supreme loneliness the other evening, I relived the pressure in these lines: That I shall live again is right; But where and how, I do not know; But hidden away from mortal sight In that land to which I go Faithfully Yours, W. C. L. CORRELL.

Dr. Correll desires to be remembered to all inquiring friends and to assure them that his own best wishes for a joyous Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year, are sincerely and generously tendered to one and all. J. W. J.

COLBERT IN "ALICE ADAMS"

Claudette Colbert, making her first radio appearance of the Winter dramatic season, stars in the Radio Theatre presentation of "Alice Adams" on Monday, January 3. This play is based on the popular novel by Booth Tarkington and will be broadcast over the Columbia network at 9 p. m. (EST) with Cecil B. DeMille directing.

"Alice Adams" is the story of a small town girl and it provides the star who plays the title role with a fine opportunity for characterization. Alice is at the stage when she believes life is all a play and that she must "act" rather than face realities. Consequently the play presents the star with the unusual problem of acting the part of a young girl who is also acting a part.

Specifically Alice's social ambitions conflict with her father's financial resources. Alice and her mother combine with such pressure that the father is forced into dishonesty to satisfy their ambition. Only then does Alice face

SOLONS AWAIT F. D.'S MESSAGE NEXT MONDAY

President May Show Way
Toward New Policy
Of Defense

MONOPOLIES FACE FIGHT

General Tax Revision To Be Discussed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28—(UP)—Administration leaders looked forward today to a message from President Roosevelt guiding congress toward a firm foreign and national defense policy, a curb on monopoly, and encouragement of business through a revision of taxes.

The message, to be delivered in person when the regular session opens Monday, was expected to be a comprehensive disclosure of the administration program as it shapes up after a fruitless special session and in the face of the current business recession.

Outstanding problems to be dealt with were forecast generally as:

1. Foreign Policy: Mr. Roosevelt was believed likely to deal at length with the nation's foreign relations, emphasizing his belief that the United States must accept certain responsibilities, and possibly outlining a national defense program that would, incidentally, aid in combating the recession.

2. Monopoly: General congressional opinion was that Mr. Roosevelt will seek rigorous action to check monopolistic tendencies but without definite decision on the type of legislation, if any, to be enacted. Increased congressional interest in the federal corporation licensing bill introduced by Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D. Wyo., and Sen. William E. Borah, R. Idaho, included an endorsement by Sen. George W. Norris, I. Neb., aroused speculation whether the administration would back it.

3. Business aid: General tax revision, including modification of the undistributed profits and capital gains tax, were considered certain in the president's program, which was expected to be pitched on a note generally pleasant to business except for the "ten percent" which Mr. Roosevelt in the past has blamed for much of the nation's economic troubles.

Middle Course Seen
Most authoritative indications were that the President would adopt a middle course on demands raised at the special session for quick and far-reaching aid to business. It was emphasized that there had been no indication the administration would yield to demands for drastic changes in New Deal policy.

Mr. Roosevelt so far has merely "thought about" the message he will read to the joint session of senate and house. He has not yet started to put into writing the document which—with the budget message to follow—will be the first full outline of the President's views since the administration's program ran into both a depression and a congressional rebellion.

Mr. Roosevelt is expected to call for revival in some form of the wages and hours bill buried by the house.

Another possible theme for the message was the New Deal effort to revive private enterprise and expansion in the utility field, whose leaders have conferred recently with the president without, apparently, gaining any drastic concessions in regard to government competition. It was understood, however, that the regional planning bill—for seven TVA's—would be modified.

The greatest emphasis in the message appeared likely to be on foreign affairs, which some congressional sources have privately viewed as attracting public attention from administration troubles in other fields. The President also was expected to put punch into the anti-monopoly drive which was forecast by the weekend speech of Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson.

Jackson's speech, blaming monopolistic business for the recession, also was viewed by some congressional sources as indicating that the administration program of tax revision would be a slow procedure, because the threat of new taxes raised by the assistant attorney general might be used as a lever to speed the President's general program.

Wife's Curiosity Leads Jobless Husband To Design Lamp That May Bring Millions

Yes, There Still Are Success Stories,
as You'll See

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 28—A wife's curiosity is a good thing. And scientists can be wrong.

At least the success story of W. J. Keller of this city amply bears out these assertions.

It's a story of heart-breaking struggles against apparently insurmountable odds, the suffering of physical hardships, innumerable disappointments and finally the accomplishment of the "impossible" and then, at last—success.

Future is Golden

Today W. J. Keller is the head of his own business which grossed $30,000 last year and which has prospects of at least $100,000 gross for 1937. Keller expects to be doing a million-dollar business within five years. His associates say he will be grossing a million dollars a year before three years.

And it's all because his wife Nell was a curious woman.

It was back in 1930. The depression really was beginning to get depressing in St. Louis. Keller had been working as a timekeeper in a small St. Louis factory. But the factory shut down and Keller had nothing to do except keep his own time. Few were working.

He tramped the streets for any kind of work. It wasn't to be had. In desperation, he went from house to house trying to sell flowers. Flowers had lost their appeal, he found. Flour was what housewives were interested in. Where was the next sack coming from?

And that's what was bothering Keller. Where was the money coming from? He went around the streets picking up old wooden boxes here and there and chopped them up into kindling to sell. This helped a little.

Things kept getting worse until finally Mrs. Keller managed to get a job in a factory that made permanent waving machines. The pay was small but it helped.

No Electricity

Then the electric company turned off the power.

This particular evening—the evening that Nell Keller got curious—she was sewing. The light was dim and she found it hard to thread a needle.

"Bill," she remarked, "why is it the light from an oil lamp is red or yellow instead of being a strong white light?"

"Huh?" said Bill, not hearing a word she was saying.

"Bill Keller, you're not paying a bit of attention to me. What makes the light from the lamp yellow? Why isn't it white like electric lights?"

"Why I don't know, hon," Bill acknowledged. And then it hit him. "Say, you've got something there! I'm going to find out."

And that's what Bill Keller proceeded to do. With no technical training whatever, he began a quest that was going to take six years before it would end.

Ignorance is Bliss

If Bill Keller had only known it, he could have gone into any one of the big department or hardware stores in St. Louis and bought an oil lamp that would have given off a bright white light. It had been on the market for years and had been nationally advertised in almost every magazine of general circulation. But Bill didn't know about it. Scientists claimed that this lamp gave off 75 candles of light. The best scientists of the country maintained, was the maximum amount of light that could be produced by this kind of coal oil mantle light without putting it under pressure.

But Bill Keller didn't know about this lamp.

By day and by night Keller worked on his lamp. His wife kept on with her small paying job at the factory. At night she and Bill got their heads together over each problem that arose.

Potatoes and Beans

It took money to buy things for experiments. Potatoes were cheap. One dollar would buy a hundred pounds. So they ate fried potatoes and beans and spent the money they saved on little things their experiments required. Bill went to the library and read all he could find on lamps, gases, mantles and illumination.

He learned that the gas in a gas lamp does not light the mantle. He learned that the heat generated by the gas flame heated the mantle to a white hot heat which in turn gave off light. So he and his wife decided that they would have to make their lamp a mantle lamp.

Step by step they worked on it. As each problem was solved, they went to the next one. All this time they were working without funds. They had only the few pennies they saved here and there. By now they couldn't look a bean or a potato in the face. But they kept on.

They made hundreds of crude burners. By trial and error they developed their burner. At one time they were trying to make a deflector. It would require a lot of money to have dies made for what they wanted. Down to the ding store went Bill. A cookie pan and a funnel did the trick.

Each part meant some heart-breaking effort.

They had decided they wanted a special type of mantle. Finally they got a company in New Jersey interested. After months and many letters, this company finally built a mantle to their specifications. Needless to say, this company now makes all the mantles for Keller's lamp.

The Wick Problem

Wicks presented as big a difficulty. Bill had ideas about the wick. It had to be just so. There was nothing on the market to fill his needs. One company offered to make the kind he wanted if he would order 250 gross—36,000 wicks. Finally, though, he found a company that would gamble and make a few to specifications.

Finally the patents were granted. Nearly five years had passed. The lamp was perfected. In all that time, Keller had worked unaware that there was another oil mantle lamp on the market. At no time did any of his patent requests ever conflict or infringe in any way on any existing patents.

The big prosperous company with its well established coast to coast business didn't bother to look into the new patent granted. Why should it? Scientists had informed it that it had the absolute finest in its type of lamp. They were convinced it was scientifically impossible to produce a lamp better. No oil mantle lamp would give off more than 75 candles of light!

But Keller's would.

His lamp would give off 110 candles of light. You see, he hadn't heard about this being "impossible," so he went ahead and did it.

Not only broke, but considerably in debt, Keller tried to find a way to get his lamp on the market. He had made a few and had sold them here and there to his friends. The folk in Bill's home town—Sandoval, Ill., liked the lamp. Two or three of them were sold there. But he was still without funds and could not hire a salesman.

His First Break

Finally he wrote several letters to big distributors. One of these happened to be one of the largest mail order houses in the country.

A statement in Keller's letter which said that his lamp would produce 110 candles of light from coal oil, piqued the interest of one of the big executives.

"Can you be in Chicago with your lamp by Friday morning?"

It was Thursday night. Keller was flat broke. But he had a good friend, W. H. Kruse, a florist, whose greenhouse was just a few doors down Arsenal street from Keller's flat.

Kruse had been observing Bill. He decided that anyone that could stick to an impossible task for five years had something.

"Bill," Kruse said, "you go home and get cleaned up. We are going to take the midnight train to Chicago."

So Keller and Kruse went to Chicago.

Bill Shows 'Em

The big company executive was waiting. So was Mr. Research Engineer. They were polite but unimpressed. But Keller showed them. He lit his lamp and it made a light so bright it hurt the eyes. It needed a shade. The research

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

The following questions are those which have actually been asked Mr. Ries in the last week, either by mail, by telephone or personally at meetings. You too can have your questions answered by writing to this newspaper or direct to Mr. Ries, Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

QUESTION: I have become interested in growing some cactus. Will you tell me where I can get information on this subject?

ANSWER: Write to the Office of Information, United States Department of Agriculture Washington, D. C. and ask for U. S. Dept. Agricultural Circular No. 66 on Cacti. In addition to this would suggest you look up in your local library or perhaps buy a copy of Cactus Culture by Ellen D. Schulz, published by Orange Judd Company, and of Our Native Cacti by Ethel Higgins, published by A. T. De La Mare. The Cactus and Succulents Society of America puts out two very interesting books, one on cactus and the other on Succulents.

QUESTION: There are a lot of small grayish-brown spots on my ferns that I can scrape off with my finger nail. Can you tell me what these are and what I can do to control them?

ANSWER: If these spots are on the upper surface and on the ribs of the leaves, as well as on the under surface, they are no doubt scale insects. The reason I mentioned this is because many people mistake the brown spores, which are the fruiting bodies of the ferns, for insect pests. About the only way that you can satisfactorily control scale insects, outside of scraping them off if you have just a few, is to spray your plant with one of the oil sprays made for this purpose. Your local florist will no doubt have some of this material on hand which he will be glad to sell to you. It sometimes happens that if you have a very severe infestation of scale on ferns it is simpler to cut the entire fern foliage off to the ground and let it grow up anew, or to follow the practice of certain other house plant growers and that is throw the plant away and buy a new one that is not infested.

QUESTION: My Coleus and some of my other plants have a lot of white, cottony spots on them. Are these aphids? What can I do to control them?

ANSWER: I should say from your description that you have mealy bugs on your plants. It is quite a common occurrence. They are far more difficult to control than ordinary plant lice since the white coating over them is more engineer got out a couple dozen gadgets and light meters and gave it a going over what was a going over. But there it was—110 candles of light. And scientists had said anything over 75 was an impossibility!

When Keller and Kruse got on the train for St. Louis that night, they had a contract to supply this mail order company with 25,000 lamps.

That was a year and a half ago. Instead of 25,000 lamps the first year, that company alone used 32,000 lamps. And this year, their orders are larger than ever.

C. M. SIMS NEW BOSS OF STATE HIGH ATHLETES

COLUMBUS, Dec. 28—(UP)—C. M. Sims, Piqua, today headed the Ohio High School Athletic Association to succeed Floyd Rowe, Cleveland.

Sims' election as president of the organization for a one year term was announced by Commissioner H. R. Townsend following the tabulation of votes—cast by 1140 schools throughout the state.

Lloyd Kaufman, Attica, was elected vice president to succeed M. A. Shepard, Chillicothe, Townsend was re-elected commissioner for a five year term.

Two new members were named to posts on the important state board of control for three year terms. They were Supt. Karl J. Weikel, Newton Falls, northwest district, and Principal C. H. Jones, Wellston, southeastern district.

Weikel succeeds Rowe on the board and Jones succeeds Shepard.

The state board members also serve on the three-member district boards.

Others elected to district board posts were: southwest, W. F. Hoerner, Versailles, three years, and Wade E. Miller, Middletown, two years; central, A. B. Velsler, Canal Winchester, three years; eastern, L. T. Gray, Tiltonville, three years, and E. F. McCarrroll, Denison, one year; northwest, F. L. Kinley, Findlay, three years.

The results were announced following the regular annual board meeting. Townsend said no rule changes were adopted.

SCARLET FEVER CARDS REMOVED FROM ASHVILLE

Two scarlet fever quarantines on homes in Ashville were removed Monday by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, health commissioner.

Cards were taken from the home of J. S. Hoover, Harrison township justice of peace, and Don Donaldson. Mr. Hoover and a daughter, Shirley Ann, 2, and Virginia Donaldson were ill of the disease.

that we do not have any bulletins on the subject but would suggest that you consult a book which has just been recently published entitled "1001 Christmas Facts and Fancies" by Alfred C. Hottes. In this, among many other things, you will find rather complete instructions on Christmas decorations.

QUESTION: I have just purchased a new home and find that the street in front is to be regraded and the W.P.A. which is doing the work has offered to fill in my front yard for me. They tell me that they will put stone walls around by tree trunks so that the fill will do no harm to the trees. Is this true.

ANSWER: Unfortunately, the popular conception that it is perfectly safe to fill in soil around tree roots as long as the soil is kept away from the trunks, is not true. The danger comes not from the soil around the trunk but from the smothering of the roots. Although it is necessary to protect the trunk it is far more important to insure circulation of air to the tree roots. Any fill over four or five inches deep, especially if it is to be in clay soil, is dangerous. This may be counteracted by placing a layer of crushed stone or gravel over the entire root system of the tree. This layer of aerating material would need to be from 12 to 18 inches thick by the time a two or three foot fill was put over the tree roots. As I previously said, this is contrary to all present practices except those followed by up-to-date arborists. When you demand that this be done, all contractors and W.P.A. foremen will tell you that it is foolish and unnecessary.

QUESTION: Although I realize it is rather late to ask this question, I would like some information on Christmas decorations. Do you have any bulletins on this subject?

ANSWER: I am sorry to say

I was out in my backyard today throwin' some little hunks of bread to a bunch of blackbirds and I couldn't help noticin' how much alike these birds were. They all seemed to have the same amount of intelligence and I couldn't tell one from the other and their success in gettin' there first. People are a whole lot the same way and many a successful man owes it all to the fact that he got the "jump" on the other fella.

I had two cousins down home who were in love with the same girl and both of 'em were tryin' their best to marry her. One night one of 'em was sittin' on the sofa with her and he put his arm around her and he says "Milly, you're the first thing I think of when I get up in the mornin'." She says "Well, your brother told me the same thing." And he says "Yeah, but I get up a half hour before he does."

Since 1935 she had been living with an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Harris. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ganes Blakeman, former residents of Franklin county, are deceased.

Arrangements were recently completed for Emma to go to California to live with another uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Jackson. Miss Virginia Smith, of Williamsport, who is in charge of the division of aid for dependent children, took Emma to Columbus, Monday, and placed her on a train for Chicago.

In Chicago she will be met by a representative of the Travelers Aid and will be under the care of the organization on the remainder of her trip. She will arrive in San Francisco Thursday.

There are five other children in the Blakeman family. Three are in Franklin county and one in Pickaway county.

PLANES TO AUSTRALIA
WHAT is described as "a new conquest of the Pacific" began with the flight of the Samoan Clipper, a flying boat of nineteen tons, carrying a crew of eight, which started on her long flight just before Christmas. The first stop was at Honolulu, in the Hawaiian Islands, our most important outpost in the Pacific. Thence the route runs several thousand miles to the southwest, through the South Seas. Other planes will follow.

Is there enough trade, in freight or passengers, in that quarter of the world, to make such a service pay? Not immediately, of course. But with conditions and prospects what they are now in China and Japan, the thought arises that some day we might have more traffic with Australia and its environs than with eastern Asia.

Anyway, it is another heartening example of the courage and enterprise shown by American aviation. These modern Clippers of the air may yet do for us again what our ocean clippers accomplished a century ago.

STYLE IN THE POORHOUSE
CHARLES DICKENS would be interested in a reform that is taking place in his native land today. The British aged poor, those in public institutions, are being permitted a little vanity.

The annual report of the London County Council, which has them in charge, tells how the "shapeless, monotonous uniforms" in which the women inmates have been clothed in the past have been discarded for frocks cut in up-to-date styles and made in a variety of attractive colors. The old bonnets, too, are replaced by "stylish hats of felt or straw in different colors." The traditional black shawl has given away to colored cardigans. There are some old ladies who still prefer the shawl, and retain it, but the innovation pleases most and will doubtless increase in popularity.

Similar efforts are being made to lessen the dreariness and increase the humanity in British prisons, domestic relations courts and other public institutions. The idea is already in operation in America, although there are still hard-boiled critics here that think the "worthy poor" should not be spoiled by coddling and the "unworthy poor" should be left to their self-caused miseries.

A New York judges says this country needs a barkless dog. All right; such a breed, originating in Africa, was shown at a recent London dog show.

Congress doesn't seem to believe in economy—but then, nobody does at Christmas time. They may feel differently after they've spent that mileage money.

World At A Glance

Is Joseph P. Kennedy being shipped over to London, as Uncle Sam's ambassador, mainly to get him out of the political limelight on this side of the water?
I had occasion to refer to this matter recently. The story then was to the effect that Kennedy was President Roosevelt's choice for nomination as head of the Democratic ticket in 1940 and that his selection for the London embassy was made with a view to increasing his prestige in anticipation of his party's next national convention.
As I remarked at the time, this account did not seem to me a probable one.
DRAWBACKS
In the first place, Kennedy, while an extremely able individual, struck me as having certain drawbacks which would be likely seriously to weaken him as a presidential candidate. It didn't appear to me that as astute a politician as Franklin D. Roosevelt would be apt to have overlooked them.
In the second place, sending a public man into exile in Britain scarcely is calculated to advertise his in the United States.
Oh, it is a vastly honorable post. Nevertheless, its activities are not widely advertised at home. The incumbent is in danger of being laughed at for wearing

NEW DEAL PLANS RADIO PROGRAM
WASHINGTON—It is no accident that a battery of typewriters are now pounding out the greatest deluge of New Deal speeches since the campaign of 1936. It is all a part of the Roosevelt policy of assuming the offensive.

If you don't believe this cast your eye down the following list of radio addresses (the first two already delivered) which form a part of this barrage: Every one of them, it is important to note, are national radio hook-ups.

- Dec. 23—Senator Green of Rhode Island.
- Dec. 26—Robert Jackson, Assistant Attorney General.
- Dec. 30—Secretary Ickes (in one of his hottest).
- Jan. 3—Roosevelt's Message to Congress. (Will be delivered in person over national hook-up and will demand wages-hours act.)
- Jan. 8—Roosevelt's Jackson Day dinner speech.
- Jan. 10—Maury Maverick, fighting Congressman from Texas.
- Jan. 13—Senator Bob La Follette.
- Jan. 30—Marriner Eccles, Chairman Federal Reserve Board.

RADIO VS. NEWSPAPER
It is no accident, furthermore, that this campaign is built entirely around radio. Furthermore it was no accident that Roosevelt last week unloosed his blast against a large percentage of the press.
Whether wise or not, this is all part of the new and deliberate policy to slam the newspapers. It has been laid down as the rule in the inner council, that no important New Deal speech is to be made except over the widest possible network.

DIPLOMATIC STRIP TEASER
Most popular young lady with the Washington Diplomatic Corps is Anne Corio, strip teaser at the local burlesque show.

On the stage, Miss Corio is reputed to draw $1,000 weekly. But off-stage her chief appeal is a demure naturalness. No one would suspect her of being a strip teaser.

The other evening a young man-about-town telephoned Miss Corio to invite her to dinner.

"I'm so sorry," she said, "but I'm dining with Prince del Drago tonight." (Del Drago is Prince of Antani and No. 2 man in the Italian Embassy.)

"Well, how about tomorrow night?"
"Oh, I'm dining with Kippy Schell tomorrow night." (Baron Schell is secretary of the Hungarian Legation, called "Kippy" because he once was a kippered herring salesman.)

"All right, then the evening after that?"

"Oh, you're so sweet, but the next night I'm dining with the Minister of Albania." (Faik Konitza, Minister of Albania, is famous for having the most delectable dinners in Washington.)

The young man was so irate that he called up Miss Corio's manager and complained that she was giving him the run-around. However, he confirmed the fact that she had all the above engagements.

Now that is the direction that Washington gossip is beginning to take.
MUCH DISCUSSED MAN
Thomas P. Kennedy has had a tremendous amount of publicity of late.
He made wonderfully good as head of the Securities and Exchange Commissions. As head of the Maritime Board he has had a clash or two with labor, but, in the main, he has been highly successful.
In short, he has been favorably talked about—and a lot of it.
Well, it is common that a high federal official, who becomes overly conspicuous, somehow or other almost invariably is wished back into obscurity.
Raymond Moley, for instance. Or Guy Tugwell. A long list of cases could be cited.
They are taken care of—but they vanish.
WANTED CABINET POST
It so happens that Joseph P. Kennedy (I quote friends of his; not mere scandal-mongers) coveted a place in the cabinet.
Specifically he desired to be secretary of the treasury.
His notion (and his friends' notion) was that Secretary Henry

THE NAILS, as we pointed out yesterday, have a rich blood and lymphatic supply. They are bathed, therefore, by all the chemicals and toxins that originate in any other part of the body, and, therefore, a n y general disturbance may affect them and cause changes. They also are subject to local infections and, indeed, to any disease which affects the skin.

A peculiar fact established only a year or two ago is that the sulphur content of the nails is reduced under certain circumstances. The keratin (hard substance) of the nail has a considerable amount of sulphur. In atrophy of the nails, brittle nails and splitting nails, this percentage of sulphur is cut down. And it has also been found that feeding sulphur under these conditions results in improvement.
The common condition of the nails, which worries some people, consists in the appearance of white spots. They are usually stripes disposed in the transverse direction of the nails. Sometimes they are punctate.

The explanations of this curious phenomenon vary. On the one hand, we have the common explanation that each spot represents a "gift spot". If they do represent lies, I want to let the readers of this column know that I am in the clear, because I never have had one in my life. And that may support the "gift spot" theory, too, because gifts have not been the main events

The student's allowance had run out, so he wrote home for more money. Feeling a bit nervous about the impression he would make, he ended his letter:

A week later he received the following reply from his father:
"You will be glad to know I did not receive your letter."

CHAPTER 42

OUR HONEYMOON progressed in a sort of maze of haphazard housekeeping. Sally's ministrations kept us from actual chaos, and when the ugliness of golden oak and maroon brocade got too much on Mimi's nerves she found refuge in our own rooms, which shone with the crystal and silver which she had brought, and from which she had banished everything but the walnut furniture and our own belongings.

I had a desk by my window and Mimi always kept flowers on it. I had believed that the view of the mountains and Mimi's presence would inspire me to write masterpieces—but I was doomed to disappointment. I found it, indeed, difficult to write anything at all. For some reason my pen lacked fire. It was as if in living so avidly I had robbed myself of the power to express that vividness on paper.

Moreover, I yearned to be out of doors with Mimi, riding over our domain, and beyond it—up the trails to little lakes cupped in the top of the lower peaks, with yellow lilies reflected in their depths and the slim trunks of the pale aspens. It was wonderful to be alone in all that vast loneliness—going up and up through spruce and pine—to see a coyote like a gray shadow crossing our path, or a deer with startled eyes, and the lovely wild leap which took it out of our sight.

It was as if our lives had two sides—the side of the ugly house with the hateful shadows of drudgery which hung over it; the side which had to do with ugly memories of the things Mimi had said to me on the night of our arrival and the morning after, the ugly side of my financial uncertainties. And that other side, of Mimi in the orchard, with cherries looped over her ears, Mimi in the sweet hay of one of the barns, with a puff-ball of a kitten in her lap, Mimi brushing her bright hair with a silver brush, Mimi whipping the streams with her trout line, and beating me at it with a skill she had learned in the Maine woods.

I cooked the trout for our dinner—and we had vegetables from our own garden—and perhaps a sweet loaf of Mrs. Hayes' baking or a dish of cream cheese which she had made for us.

Idyllic? Yes. And it couldn't last. There was always that haunting thought of the other side of things, and the crash came in a letter from my lawyer. There were, he said, practically no funds at my disposal. If I could make the farm pay I might tide over the present crisis. Otherwise, he would advise me to sell.

There was a letter, too, from the employment agency at Denver. They gave me little hope—they might be able to send a cook if I was willing to give very high wages. There was much objection on account of the remoteness of the ranch. The sum they named as wages took my breath away. I had never dreamed of such rewards for domestic service.

I had made up my mind when we were first married I would have no secrets from Mimi. In an ideal singleness of soul, a man and his wife should bear their burdens together. But it seemed to me now that I would better let well enough alone. Why worry Mimi with things which might straighten themselves? I would give more time to the management of the ranch and less to writing. I might even get along without Hayes. He had, himself, suggested it. He wanted to accept an offer to take charge, for the summer, of the lively stable at the hotel where Dora worked. He knew all about the mountain ponies, and could teach the guests to ride. He could make more money in three months than I could give him in a year.

When I told Mimi that Hayes was going, she asked, "But who will manage the farm?"
"I shall do it myself."

"But when do you expect to write, Jerry? You can't be cook and manager, and an author."

"Why not?"
"Well, it isn't fair," there was a flush on her cheeks.

"I am strong. I can stand it." "I am strong, too, Jerry. You must let me help."

But I felt it would be an entering wedge to destroy her exquisiteness. I had a desperate feeling that something must turn up. I wrote again to my lawyer and told him to sell an acre or two of land. I wrote, too, to the employment agency in Denver, urging them to send a cook, and stating I would pay the price.

It was when I began to do Hayes' work, however, that I found what I had undertaken. The laborers on the farm lacked any sort of initiative. They were accustomed to constant supervision, and could not work without it. They must follow a leader or remain inactive. This made it necessary for me to be with them almost constantly. It made necessary, indeed, actual physical effort on my part. I helped them with the hay, I helped them with the cows, I stood over them while they whitewashed chicken houses, and put up wire fences, and while they taught the young calves to drink.

And after such efforts I would come into the house dead tired and dirty to find Mimi immaculate, with flowers on the table, with a great can of hot water ready for my bath, with my clothes laid out on the bed.

One night when I had had an exceptionally hard day, the thought of such formality irritated me. I had had to stop in the kitchen to supervise Sally—to see that the lettuce was cold, and that

157 Couples at Charity Dance, Monday Evening

"Big Apple" Adds to Enjoyable Event

Masses of evergreens, silver sprayed, Happy New Year and Big Apple posters in red and silver in the background formed an attractive setting for the Mistletoe Charity Ball Monday evening as it ushered in the holiday social season. Gay throngs filled the dance floor of Memorial Hall auditorium from 10 until 2.

The attractive colorful gowns of the dancers contrasting with the somber black of their escorts forming an everchanging picture delightful to see. The rustle and swish of the satin and taffeta gowns added charm to the pleasing music of Howdy Gorman's 11-piece orchestra. His floor show, including tap dancing and vocalizing by his entertainers was much enjoyed. The many sets of the "Big Apple" danced during the evening were an innovation and added much hilarity to the affair which was climaxed with the distribution of favors and noisemakers at a late hour.

SOCIAL WORKER PLANS TO AID UNEMPLOYED

MISS JOANNA C. COLCORD is one of the leading social workers in the United States. Her position is that of director of the charity organizations of the Russell Sage Foundation, New York City.

She believes that the United States must accept mass unemployment as a permanent condition, and so stated before the National Conference of Social Work, of which she is a member, in an address.

To help the situation Miss Colcord suggests: "A combination of health insurance with liberalized system of unemployment insurance. A work program to be headed up in a federal department of public works, which should have funds to distribute on a grants-in-aid basis to states and through them to localities."

"A federally-supervised and federally-subsidized system of public welfare," which, she says, would provide relief on a budgeted basis according to the needs of the individual or his family. The public works and public welfare services would be organized under civil service regulations.

Miss Colcord is a graduate of the University of Maine. She was an assistant in chemistry in Maine's state agricultural experiment station for three years. She won her certificate from the New York School of Social Work in 1911, and has held various positions, from assistant district secretary to superintendent of the New York Charity Organization, and served as field representative of the American Red Cross in the Virgin Islands.

She is author of "Broken Homes" (a treatise on family desertion); "Emergency Work Relief, and numerous articles and pamphlets. Compiler of "Roll and Go" (a compilation of folk songs of the sea).

Black Dress Brightened With Metal

THE BASIC black dress brightened by color is worn here by Eleanor Whitney, screen dancer.

The dress is made of black novelty crepe, and it has high neck and long sleeves, tight at the wrist and squared at the shoulders.

A turned-over collar of gold and red brocade and a twisted sash of the same tied about the waist, are the highlights of the dress. These may be replaced by girle and collar of different materials and colors, of course.

The wise woman who does her own sewing has made herself one of these simple black dresses, and supplied herself with several sets of accessories to wear with it.

Golden Bear Contest To Be
Last of Independents

COLUMBUS, Dec. 28.—(UP)—Ohio State's basketball team, still of unknown quality, will meet California's barnstorming team here Wednesday night in the last home game before the Big Ten season opens.

The Ohio State team, which has failed to impress those who have seen its first three games this winter, nevertheless kept its unbeaten record intact last night when it took a 31 to 17 victory from Creighton university of Omaha.

Ohio State took a 6 to 0 lead at the start and never was behind. The game dragged and neither team showed anything brilliant on offense but Ohio's triumph was well deserved.

Coach Harold Olsen of the Buckeye team used his reserves almost half the game, giving him a good opportunity to look over several sophomores who just became eligible. The recruits played well at times but none showed enough class to indicate that he would replace any of the first five—Jim Hull, Dick Baker, Bill Sattler, Capt. Jim McDonald and Dick Boughner.

Baker flipped in some nifties from the corner and led the scoring with eight points. Hull and Robert Lynch, a sophomore from Hillsboro, each scored six points.

Marshall Kittleson, forward, led Creighton with five.

Ohio held a 14 to 5 margin at the half.

MINNESOTA AND STANFORD WIN; 18,074 PRESENT

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(UP)—Another capacity crowd was expected in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night when Minnesota and Stanford shoot for a clean sweep over eastern basketball rivals.

A crowd of 18,074 jammed all available space in the big arena last night to see Minnesota, co-champion of the Big Ten, wallop Long Island university, 56-41, and Stanford, Pacific Coast conference titleholder, beat City college of New York, 45-42.

It exceeded by 74 persons the previous largest basketball turnout in this city and was believed to be a new record for the sport in this country. Larger crowds were present at the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin.

Long Island put up a good fight at the start, once leading 11-10, then coming from behind twice to tie at 13-13 and 15-15, but by half time the accurate shooting Gophers had piled up a 34-21 margin and were never headed.

The Stanford-C. C. N. Y. game was one of the most thrilling ever seen here, with the locals drawing up to within two points in the closing moments. The Cardinals led 33-20 with only seven minutes to play and looked like a sure thing, until their high-scoring center, Art Stoefer, was ousted because of four personal fouls.

In tomorrow night's double-header, Stanford will meet Long Island, and Minnesota meets New York university.

TALES in TIDBITS

By BILL BRAUCHER
Scribe Asks Kid for Some Special Favors
Some of the Boys Beset by Bad Breaks in 1937
Let Mack, Feller and Dean Have a Place in Sun

Just a word to that chubby cherub who will be popping in on us almost any day now as the bewhiskered old curmudgeon with the oversized sickle moves offstage... Listen, Kid 1938, there are a lot of game guys in this world of sports to whom Old Man 1937 gave no kind of a break... how about letting them come out from behind that eight-ball for a couple of innings?

Who are they? Well, I've got a list here as long as Old Man 1937's beard, but the first one I can think of is Connie Mack... he's an old school gentleman and a fighter who at 75 still is able to forget 1914 and 1929 when he had great ball clubs, and to look ahead... still in there swinging... you know how it is... maybe we're a little sentimental about all this... but we'd like to see Old Connie have one more day in the light.

My next candidate for some good breaks in the New Year is Dizzy Dean... certainly Dizzy went beyond himself there for a while and kicked the world around a bit... he forgot what size hat he wore, popped off out of turn, made a sort of general all-around mess of things... but Old Man 1937 showed him his place... and I think Dizzy has learned by now that we're just a bunch of animated dust, after all, and not Olympian deities or Sir Oracles... Old Man 1937 put him through the mill, and I hope you'll give us a bigger and better Dizzy in the New Year... a thing of beauty is a joy forever, Kid, and when Old Dizz hauled back and fogged that fast one down the slot he really did something for the memory book.

And the Boy From Iowa... A thing of beauty and joy forever (we are simply submerged by hat line this evening, folks), and that's one reason why we'd like to have Bob Feller's high hard one restored in its original form... We were beginning to write the story of another Walter Johnson when in the first game of the season Old Man 1937 cut down the lad from Iowa right at the elbow... and for months the youngster tasted the dregs of despair... Bob kept on trying, which is all that angels or men can do, and finally a bone-setter snapped that twisted joint back into place... as the season ended, he was beginning to come back... If he can return just a little bit farther with your help, Kid 1938, we'll be in your corner.

Give Cliff Melton a break, too... after his great pitching helped the Giants to win a pennant, he bogged down in the world series before the booming warclubs of the Yanks... he has what it takes, with a little more luck... Gabby Street is another we'd like to see treated to one of Dame Fortune's toothiest grins... He was canned by a minor league club in mid-season, and as the old lad went west "to enjoy a vacation," we thought of that picture of the Indian on the horse, all hunched over, tired of the day's disorders and life in general... but he has taken a new lease on life as manager of the Browns... give him a couple of ball players who can negotiate the distance between the bench and home plate without the aid of crutches and there's no telling how far the Old Sarge will go.

Let Pompoon have a few breaks, too... there's a horse that might have been great if it hadn't been for the presence of War Admiral... down in Kentucky they say horses have hearts... So let him have a quick break and the rail for a while and see if he really can go to town, Kid 1938... I think he can.

Jimmy Wilson, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, of the Senators: Casey Stengel, of the Bees; Frankie Frisch, of the Cardinals—all they need is one or two little breaks to make the world forget that 1937 wasn't so good... Don't overlook Sam Snead, either... All he needed for fame in 1937 was two or three putts that just rolled around the rim of the cup and hung... Blom'em in for the boy, Kid 1938, make 'em plop into that little bucket.

I know I'm forgetting to name a whole raft of brave gentlemen to whom Old Man 1937 gave nothing but the wrong answers... Be nice to them all, Kid 1938... Okay Oswald, bang those bells!

COOPER OILS ON TOP
The Cooper Oils of Commercial Point won a 37-28 basketball game from the Bobb Chevrolet of Columbus in a Sunday evening contest. Starring for the Coopers were Chuck Young at center with 15 points, Scholze and Stock at guards with 10 and nine points each. Todd and Owens were outstanding for the Bobbs.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

GETTING RID OF JUNK
WHEN YOU are building up a lead-throwing end play at a suit contract, it is necessary to eliminate from both your own hand and the dummy all suits which the opponent can lead except trumps in each hand and the suit in which you hold one or more cards in a tenace position. Your discards on the earlier tricks must be chosen in such a way that you get rid of the last remaining card in a third suit, or otherwise an opponent can break up your effort by returning that one for a simple ruff.

♠ K J 3
♥ K 7
♦ 10 4
♣ A K Q 5 3 2

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Here South bid 1-Club, West 1-Diamond, North 3-Clubs and South 3-Clubs.

West's opening lead was the diamond K, which was won in the dummy with the A. The clubs A and K were cashed and then the spade A. A club was led to the Q and on the spade K, declarer discarded a heart from the dummy.

The spade J was then ruffed and the heart finesse tried. When this failed, declarer was set.

South's discard of a heart was pointless. He should have discarded a diamond on the spade K, and then thrown West in with the diamond 10. After cashing his diamond, West would then have had to lead a heart or give the declarer a ruff and discard, which would have been just as helpful.

The declarer in discarding a heart instead of a diamond, leaving one diamond in dummy for West to lead to, spoiled his chance of forcing West to lead a suit which would be beneficial to the declarer. All West had to do in that case was to lead another diamond and allow South to ruff.

W. P. A. TO ADD 30 PICKAWAY COUNTY WORKERS TO QUOTA ON JANUARY 3

BLANKET ROAD JOB TO START NEAR RINGGOLD

Present Roster Of 110 Men To Be Boosted To 140 By Action

TRANSFERS ARE ARRANGED Jackson Township Highway Repair Completed

Assignments for 30 additional men for W. P. A. jobs in Pickaway county, to start work Jan. 3, were received Tuesday by the Circleville office from district headquarters.

These workers, the majority of them returning from private employment, will be placed on the county's blanket road improvement project, opening Wednesday. Since last August, the Pickaway county employment quota has been 110 men. The increase makes it 140.

The 110 men who have been employed on the improvement of Jackson township roads and the Salt creek bridge construction, on the Tilton-Adelphi road, will be transferred to the new program. Work on the Jackson township roads was completed Tuesday. Additional work on the bridge is incorporated in the new project. Officials said 40 men will remain on the bridge work and 70 will be sent to the road jobs.

First section of the blanket project will be on 5.7 miles of roads, north of Ringgold, in Walnut and Madison townships. They are the Ashville-Fairfield and East Ringgold-Northern roads. The entire project includes 9.2 miles of county roads. Others to be improved are east of Tilton.

Circleville's project for the improvement of streets, alleys and for sidewalks has been returned to the state office for approval before being sent to Washington. It was returned for revision.

PUBLIC TOILETS CLOSED UNDER MAYOR'S ORDER

Public toilets in the city building, considered nuisances for many years, were ordered closed Monday by Mayor W. J. Graham.

New restrooms in the front basement of the courthouse, installed as a joint project by the city and county, were recently opened.

POINTER RETURNED
Mayor W. J. Graham's pointer, Mike, reported missing, was found Monday evening in the downtown district by Byron Eby. The dog ran away from home Sunday night.

CORONER FREES CAMPBELL GIRL AFTER INQUEST

Two-Day Hunger Strike In Warren Jail Ends Following Verdict

when she grabbed the pistol used in shooting at the Christmas tree. Her sister, Mrs. Uretta Branch, and Lucius Cochran of Youngstown, who were at the party, confirmed her testimony.

Miss Campbell, occasionally brushing her eyes with a handkerchief, described at the coroner's hearing yesterday the events around the Christmas tree in the living room of the huge, luxurious Campbell home Christmas eve. She had had "two or three egg-nogs and some beer," she said, and decided she wanted to ride in her car.

She went out to the garage, climbed in. Her dog, following, hopped up beside her. She found the pistol she said she always carried in a side pocket for self protection while driving at night. But she didn't have her keys, and, returning to the house for them, she took the pistol along because she was afraid the dog might play with it and cause it to discharge. Re-entering the living room, she said:

"Where are my keys?" No one paid any attention to her.

"I had a sudden foolish idea," Miss Campbell continued. "I wanted to attract attention, so I leveled the pistol at the candles (on the Christmas tree) and fired. Mother cried, 'Louise,' and ran toward me, trying to take the pistol away. Our hands were entwined around it and there was a shot and she fell to the floor. I was dazed and didn't know what happened. When she fell I just stood there and looked at her. I couldn't speak and I couldn't move. They tell me I went to the garden to try to commit suicide and that Mr. Cochran (Lucius Cochran, a family friend and guest at the Christmas eve party) came out and brought me back, but I don't remember much about that. I guess I never want to see a gun of any kind again."

Others in Room
The other persons in the living room were Cochran and Mrs. Uretta Branch, Miss Campbell's sister, who came here from her home in London for the holidays. Cochran and Mrs. Branch corroborated Miss Campbell's testimony concerning the quantity of alcoholic beverage she had consumed.

PARRETT QUILTS PUMPKIN SHOW SECRETARY JOB

my end of it did not show a gain. "I feel I have served Circleville and the Pumpkin Show society to the best of my ability. I know I have neglected my business and lost sales on account of the exacting demands of the job of secretary. I liked it tremendously, and it is with genuine regret that I feel I can no longer give it the time and attention necessary for success. I have enjoyed my associations with the officers and directors, but my business and Chamber of Commerce duties require all of my time, therefore, gentlemen, I tender my resignation to take effect Dec. 31, 1937.

"I hope that you will use much thought and careful consideration in choosing my successor as it takes a young man with plenty of enthusiasm, energy and time to put this job over successfully. You have my best wishes for the success of the coming shows."

Mr. Parrett added he lost "five pounds every Pumpkin Show." He explained that regardless of what action the present directors desired to take on his resignation, he would not be an applicant for the position under the new official family.

$3,077 Loss Recorded

Previous to Mr. Parrett's resignation, a long letter from Mayor Graham to directors was read by the secretary and placed on the minutes. The report of the auditing committee, comprised of T. D. Kinn and Claude Kraft, directors, showing a loss of $3,077 on the last celebration, was read and approved.

"We have nothing to regret," Mayor Graham stated after the report had been received. "We put on good shows. The last two shows had the largest crowds of any shows ever held. The Pumpkin Show is not an organization for profit."

Despite the loss the show society still has a balance. Directors instructed the secretary to write letters of application to the mayor and Robert G. Colville, treasurer of the society, for their work in the organization.

Reports of two departments were submitted. Expenses of the horse department, including the saddle and light harness classes, pulling contest, draft horse division and pony class amounted to $1,507.12. In discussions previous to the meeting the directors agreed a charge should be made for the saddle horse show in future celebrations to help cover expenses of the department.

The report of Proctor Baughman, parade director, showed expenses amounted to $982 in that department. Elimination of some of the parades in future shows was favored by the group. Showmen complained that the numerous parades cut their revenues and reduce revenues received by the society.

Assets Dwindle

Assets of the organization before the celebration amounted to $4,206.34 as compared to $1,128.43 after the show had been staged, the financial report showed. Show expenditures totalled $12,184.58.

Mayor Graham's letter to directors follows:

"With the memories of the successful 1936 and 1937 Pumpkin Shows in mind, it is but natural that we contemplate for a moment, the splendid work done by the directors and chairmen of these shows. Not only in the Fall of the year, when the annual show is held but throughout the entire year, these directors are carrying on, promoting the show, serving as a clearing house for ideas, giving useful information to prospective exhibitors and the public as well.

"The importance of trade associations, in general, is shown by the fact that every industry of any importance has its own trade association supported by members of the particular industry in question. The trend in recent years has been distinctly in the direction of strengthening of such trade groups.

"Such is true of agriculture. Men on the farm are indeed fortunate in the availability of such active groups as the Grange, Farm Bureau and co-operative associations and others.

"The facilities of the Farm Bureau are constantly being extended, are being used more and more by farmers in the direction of agriculture. As a result our display of grain, fruit and vegetables was bigger and better.

"In the field of art and domestic science a different situation exists. There is no other similar organization in the county. Of course, these department heads can maintain contact with those of neighboring counties, but that is not always easy. That the art, fancy work, and domestic science displays are very helpful is shown by the fact that art is now being taught in our public schools. Home economics and domestic science in some of the rural districts.

On all sides come unmistakable signs of revived competition in our horse show, bringing new wealth and prosperity to those interested in this business, a benefit result to our city, which was among the first to recognize the value of a horse show.

"The attendance to the Pumpkin Show in the last two years showed a heavy gain over previous years; in every section of the city, I saw evidences of increased enthusiasm and show activity and I am more firmly convinced than ever before, that Circleville needs this Pumpkin Show.
